

Newsletter April 2007

Subject: Curas' Services

Dear business partners and associates,

We all have things we like to do more than other things. There are also things we actually do better than other things. Finally, there are things which are most important to us; no matter who we are: Patient, an end-user, a hospital or nursing home, a (distribution) company or factory.

Curas' business model is founded on the strong principle that we focus our skills and resources exactly where our partners have told us that Curas can deliver most advantage to them, and thus helping you achieving greater results.

By working together as a team, in the Curas partnership, we can together make a difference. This teamwork, when outlined, shows us a number of very important activities; - and who are responsible for each one of those important duties. Once the roles are understood, allocated and carried forward with determination; together we will be able to offer the Market our collective benefits; services and products.

In the next two Newsletters; we will take the opportunity to explain in more detail the unique and required services that Curas offer our exclusive partners: We are committed to servicing our partners, distributors as well as manufacturers; with an ever-evolving range of elements, each one is validated and each one will bring value to our partners' healthcare offer.

Next month we will outline the value of Curas Services in relationship to our Manufacturing partners worldwide. We are looking forward sharing with you those services.

NB: Curas always choose transparency as our preferred option. The monthly Newsletter shows everyone that we put our actions in line with our values.
